

A Five Cent Fare from the City to the Sea

WEATHER—Fair to-night and Tuesday.

FINAL
RESULTS EDITION

PRICE ONE CENT.

The

"Circulation Books Open to All."

NEW YORK, MONDAY, JUNE 25, 1906

WEATHER—Fair to-night and Tuesday.

FINAL
RESULTS EDITION

PRICE ONE CENT.

GIANTS WIN THIRD GAME FROM PHILLIES

OLD MRS. STENTON SAW FIVE BLOWS STRUCK DAUGHTER

Mother of Mrs. Kinnan Tells New Story of Bronx Murder—Refuses to Submit to Another Third Degree.

The admission by Mrs. Louise Stenton that she saw a man strike her daughter Alice five times over the head with a weapon on the night of June 8 puts a new phase on the mystery surrounding the murder of Mrs. Kinnan. This story is entirely different from any that the old lady has told hitherto, and confirms the impression that she knows who killed her daughter and could tell if she wished.

Mrs. Stenton's new statement was not made to the authorities, but to an old friend, Mrs. Miner, of No. 650 East Third street, Kensington, Flatbush. Mrs. Miner called upon Mrs. Stenton last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Miller in Bedford Park, where the old woman is staying since her forcible removal from the scene of the tragedy at One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue.

"Of course," said Mrs. Miner, "an Evening World reporter told me I might find out if possible what Mrs. Stenton knew about the killing of Alice. I had lived with them and known them for more than twenty years."

"I asked Mrs. Stenton if she thought Alice's husband had anything to do with it, but the idea did not seem to make any impression on her. I knew, though, that Mr. Kinnan had a perfect alibi."

Mind Seemed to Wander.

"Then I asked Mrs. Stenton point blank who killed her daughter. She said it was the man who had been at the house every night during the week. I asked her the name of the man but her mind seemed to wander. At any rate, she wouldn't give it to me."

"When I asked the old lady how she knew it was the man who had called every night during the week she said she saw him hit Alice."

"I saw him hit Alice five times on the head," said the old lady. "It was awful!"

"That was all I could get from her. For some reason of her own she appeared to be anxious to protect the man she said she saw strike her daughter."

Women Were Devoted.

Mrs. Miner said the theory that Mrs. Stenton killed Mrs. Kinnan is absurd. Although strange and unconventional in their demeanor toward each other they were devotedly attached.

Mrs. Stenton is said to have told a detective who talked to her last night the name of the man she thinks called her daughter to the door. If such an admission was made Mrs. Stenton must know the man, because Mrs. Miner is positive that she told the truth when she said she saw five blows struck.

Congress McDonald repeated his time-honored statement that he thinks an arrest will be made soon this afternoon. He said that so far as he is concerned he would issue a warrant in a minute, but that Assistant District-Attorney Cardozo and Capt. Price, the head of the Bronx Detective Bureau, suspect another person than the one he would arrest. He hopes to bring them to his way of thinking by to-morrow.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

DARING WORK IN SAVING PERSONS CUT OFF BY FIRE

Firemen Grope Through Smoke and Rescue Unconscious Man.

PAINTERS SAVE MANY.

Plant Ladders on Roof of Adjoining House and Carry Them Down.

Hanging over the sill of a window on the top floor of the five-story apartment house at No. 22 Lexington avenue, with flames behind him, Bert Flemming, twenty-one years old, of Baton Rouge, La., a guest of a family on that floor, was rescued by Lieutenant Potter and Laddermen Moje and Bradford, of Truck No. 7.

Flemming was ready to jump, and the net was spread for him, but he became senseless from the smoke and collapsed as he did, almost falling out of his chair. His friends then ran over to his aid, and he was soon restored to consciousness. They then carried him to the roof, where he was found to be unconscious. The firemen then got up the ladders and one of the paintmen was broken.

They had not returned at dark. An alarm was given and searching parties were sent out. No trace of the boat could be found. At daylight to-day Mr. Flemming had scores of men ready to start in search of his body.

George Boring, a fisherman, on his way out to his nets, came across an empty boat tied to a stake, 200 yards off shore. He took it to the boat, and the boat was seen of them after they left the beach.

They had not returned at dark. An alarm was given and searching parties were sent out. No trace of the boat could be found. At daylight to-day Mr. Flemming had scores of men ready to start in search of his body.

George Boring, a fisherman, on his way out to his nets, came across an empty boat tied to a stake, 200 yards off shore. He took it to the boat, and the boat was seen of them after they left the beach.

They had not returned at dark. An alarm was given and searching parties were sent out. No trace of the boat could be found. At daylight to-day Mr. Flemming had scores of men ready to start in search of his body.

George Boring, a fisherman, on his way out to his nets, came across an empty boat tied to a stake, 200 yards off shore. He took it to the boat, and the boat was seen of them after they left the beach.

They had not returned at dark. An alarm was given and searching parties were sent out. No trace of the boat could be found. At daylight to-day Mr. Flemming had scores of men ready to start in search of his body.

George Boring, a fisherman, on his way out to his nets, came across an empty boat tied to a stake, 200 yards off shore. He took it to the boat, and the boat was seen of them after they left the beach.

They had not returned at dark. An alarm was given and searching parties were sent out. No trace of the boat could be found. At daylight to-day Mr. Flemming had scores of men ready to start in search of his body.

George Boring, a fisherman, on his way out to his nets, came across an empty boat tied to a stake, 200 yards off shore. He took it to the boat, and the boat was seen of them after they left the beach.

BEATS GIRL TO DEATH IN BOAT; DROWNS HIMSELF

Bert Hess Takes Kate Strycker Out Rowing and Tragedy Follows.

MAN FINDS THE BODIES.

Bloodstains and Marks on the Girl's Body Indicate a Struggle.

(Special to The Evening World.)

KEYPORT, N. J., June 25.—The bodies of Bert Hess, of South Amboy, and Kate Strycker, of Brown's Point, were found floating in shallow water about two hundred yards off the beach here to-day under circumstances indicating that Hess beat the girl into insensibility in a boat, threw her overboard, held her under until she drowned, and then drowned himself. He was a good swimmer and could tell if she wished.

Mrs. Stenton's new statement was not made to the authorities, but to an old friend, Mrs. Miner, of No. 650 East Third street, Kensington, Flatbush. Mrs. Miner called upon Mrs. Stenton last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Miller in Bedford Park, where the old woman is staying since her forcible removal from the scene of the tragedy at One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue.

"Of course," said Mrs. Miner, "an Evening World reporter told me I might find out if possible what Mrs. Stenton knew about the killing of Alice. I had lived with them and known them for more than twenty years."

"I asked Mrs. Stenton if she thought Alice's husband had anything to do with it, but the idea did not seem to make any impression on her. I knew, though, that Mr. Kinnan had a perfect alibi."

Mind Seemed to Wander.

"Then I asked Mrs. Stenton point blank who killed her daughter. She said it was the man who had been at the house every night during the week. I asked her the name of the man but her mind seemed to wander. At any rate, she wouldn't give it to me."

"When I asked the old lady how she knew it was the man who had called every night during the week she said she saw him hit Alice."

"I saw him hit Alice five times on the head," said the old lady. "It was awful!"

"That was all I could get from her. For some reason of her own she appeared to be anxious to protect the man she said she saw strike her daughter."

Women Were Devoted.

Mrs. Miner said the theory that Mrs. Stenton killed Mrs. Kinnan is absurd. Although strange and unconventional in their demeanor toward each other they were devotedly attached.

Mrs. Stenton is said to have told a detective who talked to her last night the name of the man she thinks called her daughter to the door. If such an admission was made Mrs. Stenton must know the man, because Mrs. Miner is positive that she told the truth when she said she saw five blows struck.

Congress McDonald repeated his time-honored statement that he thinks an arrest will be made soon this afternoon. He said that so far as he is concerned he would issue a warrant in a minute, but that Assistant District-Attorney Cardozo and Capt. Price, the head of the Bronx Detective Bureau, suspect another person than the one he would arrest. He hopes to bring them to his way of thinking by to-morrow.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as much information as possible, the name of the visitor who was received at the house on the night of the murder. Lawyer Gibson's alibi has been investigated by Capt. Price's detectives, and they are positive that he was not with her.

Balts at Third Degree.

It was his intention to submit Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer, Burton W. Gibson, to an examination in the presence of each other, each to be questioned on admissions or statements made by the other. According to the Coroner the contemplated examination was postponed because of the discovery of new and important evidence which requires immediate investigation. From another source it was gleaned that the examination as contemplated was postponed because Mrs. Stenton positively refused to submit herself to another ordeal such as she went through on Saturday.

It has been eighteen days since Mrs. Kinnan was murdered on the front porch of the old Stenton residence, One Hundred and Eighty-ninth street and Washington avenue. Acting Inspector Hogan, who was sent to the Bronx last week to take the place of Inspector McClusky, made a personal investigation of the case to-day. While the search for the murderer is in the hands of the Detective Bureau Inspector Hogan means to find why there has not been some action.

The object of examining Mrs. Stenton and her lawyer together is to get from them as